

JONES TODAY GOES AFTER 4TH TITLE ON GOLF LINKS

One of 170 Starters in Qualifying Round of National Amateur Championship

PLAYED SINCE YOUTH

Has Had Most Wonderful
Year of All Golf
Players

By Davis J. Walsh
I. N. S. Sports Writer

Merion Cricket Club, South Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 22.—(INS)—Bobby Jones, seeking his fourth major championship of the year, shot an absolutely perfect par of 36 for the first nine holes of the qualifying test for the National Amateur Golf Championship this morning.

Each of the nine holes was negotiated in par figures.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22.—Fourteen years ago, Bobby Jones, the boy, played Merion in his first national amateur golf championship at an age when most boys of fourteen are finishing their last year of the so-called grammar grades. The reporters made quite a point of the fact that he wore knickerbockers. The reporters of that distant day were an ingenious lot. They seemed to think that knickerbockers were the badge of extreme youth.

Six years ago, Robert T. Jones, Jr., the man, won his first national amateur championship at Merion, achieving an honor that many, in their extreme innocence, had come to believe was beyond him.

Today, Robert T. Jones, Jr., the veteran of twelve major championships in which the title has been his, will seek the goal of his heart's desire on the course that has meant so much to him in the past. Today Robert T. Jones, Jr., the master champion of them all, will go after his fourth major championship of the year, a miracle to anybody else but just a commonplace to the genius that is Jones.

He will be one of a field of 170 starters in the qualifying round of the national amateur championship today, meaning that Jones will be one starter and the 169 others will be just so many good golfers trying to stop a great one from doing what no other man in all the history of the world has done. It seems needless to add that a Jones victory, if accomplished, will constitute a record for competitive golf since the beginning of time.

For men have played golf back through the centuries, yet none could do what Jones has done this year. At the outset, he won the British amateur championship for the first time in his life; then he won the British open (Continued on Page 4)

RAZE HOSTELRY OF PRE-REVOLUTIONARY AGE

Central House, Sellersville,
Oldest Standing Hotel
Of the Borough

WAS BUILT ABOUT 1775

SELLERSVILLE, Sept. 20.—The Central House Hotel, oldest standing building in Sellersville must give way for the erection of modern stores and apartments.

Since before 1775, the old hostelry known as Sellers' Tavern, has been a historic landmark of the North Penn Valley. It was about this building that the little town, which later became Sellersville, named from the hotel, sprang up. Practically the entire original building, erected in the eighteenth century, remained intact up to the present time.

From the time it was built until shortly after 1857, when the North Penn branch of the Reading Railroad was constructed the old tavern was the main stop for mail and passenger coach drivers to change their horses. The run was made from Philadelphia to Bethlehem, over the Bethlehem pike, oldest road in the eastern part of Pennsylvania.

Tradition has it that George Washington spent some time in the Sellersville section at the time of the erection of the hotel.

About forty years ago, the tavern changed hands when it was remodelled and a new roof added by the owner, Monroe Hartzel. The name was then changed to the Central House. It was sold several times and seven years ago was remodelled into stores and apartments.

Now the building is being completely torn down to allow a modern structure to be erected by the Progressive Realty Company. The old stable will also be razed. The new building will be sixty by sixty-one feet, and two stories high. Three stores will front on Main street and four apartments will be built on the second floor.

The building will be of rough texture face brick with rough pointing. It will be as modern throughout in its appointments as modern planning can make it. When finished the outside of the trim will be painted in ivory white.

Work on the building will be rushed to completion.

The contract for both tearing down the hotel and building the apartments and stores has been awarded to Ely M. Utz, of Telford. Oscar Martin, Doylestown architect, drew up the plans for the new building.

Warren H. McClosky Buried In Morrisville Cemetery

McClosky, 52 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McClosky, who died on Thursday, was made on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late home, near here. Services were conducted by the Rev. Frank Lewis, pastor of the Fallsington M. E. Church. Interment was in Morrisville Cemetery.

HERE AND THERE THRUOUT BUCKS COUNTY

Engineer Wayne D. Meyers, State Highway Department, reports that a two-tenths of a mile section of concrete, thirty feet wide, is now completed and ready for traffic where U. S. Route 122 enters Doylestown Borough. This section was built to provide sufficient width and eliminate traffic congestion at the borough line. It was financed under the State-aid plan and cost $8,801.74.

Stanley Secho, proprietor of the American House, Perkasie, will fight any move of the Federal Court to padlock the bar room of that hostelry, it became known today.

The American House is listed among thirteen hotels against which padlocks were issued by Judge Kirkpatrick in Federal Court, Philadelphia.

The judicial action came as a result of a raid conducted by federal prohibition agents nearly a year ago while there was in progress a big celebration marking the completion of extensive improvements to the building which had been damaged by fire.

J. J. Burton, now of Trewhington, conducted the American House. While the case was pending Burton sold the property to Secho.

Secho says he has retained counsel and will seek to have the decision set aside. He bases his claim for a reversal of the decision on the fact that he was not connected with the American House at the time of the raid.

The place has not been padlocked as yet.

Perkasie Borough Council has turned down an offer of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company to sell a privately owned power line in a section of East Rockhill township recently annexed to the borough. The borough will not purchase the lines at the price asked by the company.

Borough councilmen, in session this week, objected to an item for "incidental" included in the utility's itemized bill of $1700.80. At a previous meeting of council a committee was instructed to make a study of the bill and report back to council.

The committee reported that it found the items for the cost of the lines and the service agreeable, but on this bill was another item for $421.07, which it was said was for attorney's fees and labor incidental to the acquisition of the lines.

During the business session of the first meeting of the season of the Solebury Township Parent-Teachers' Association in the school house all of last year's officers were re-elected as follows: President, Captain George C.

3 MEN IN CAR BOMB HOTEL NEAR EASTON

Blast Rips Away Porch and Shatters All The Windows

BLAME BUSINESS RIVALS

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 22.—A bomb hurled shortly after midnight from a speeding motor car ripped away the front porch and shattered every window in the Plaza Hotel, Belfast, which has been unoccupied since it was razed several months ago.

According to witnesses, the car was occupied by three men as it sped through the village, about eight miles from here. The windows in two houses opposite the hotel, occupied by William Schmickley and Sidney Abel and their families, were also shattered.

Police believe the bombing was the work of rival roadhouse keepers. The Plaza Hotel was formerly known as "Instead Inn." Several caretakers said to have been living in the place could not be located by police.

The automobile used by the bombers is believed to have been seen a half hour later on Winstep road. Detectives say there has been an epidemic of bombings during the past five months in this section. All are laid to rival roadhouse owners and liquor runners.

It is also believed by police that a quantity of dynamite stolen from the powder house of the C. K. Williams Co., used in road building and quarry operations, is being employed in the bombings.

Thirty-three years of progressive merchandising and general store operation by Robert L. Clymer and his efficient associates was marked when 123 business and professional men of Doylestown tendered Mr. Clymer a surprise testimonial dinner in his new department store building on South Main street.

Practically carried away from a sick bed by his physician and brought into the attractive main floor of the store that was turned into a banquet hall, Mr. Clymer was taken completely by surprise. About him were gathered his associates in business, competitors and folks in every walk of life.

The party was planned by representatives of the Doylestown Merchants' Association, the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs and the department heads of the Clymer organization.

DR. DORRANCE DIES; NATIVE OF BRISTOL

President of Campbell Soup Company; Noted As Chemist

HELD GERMAN DEGREES

Dr. John Thompson Dorrance, president of the Campbell Soup Company, died shortly before 9 o'clock yesterday morning at his home, Pomona Farms, near Cinnaminson, N. J.

Dr. Dorrance was born in Bristol November 11, 1873. He was the son of the late John Dorrance, Jr., and Eleanor Gillingham Thompson Dorrance. His father was descended from George Dorrance, one of three brothers of a family believed to have been of French Huguenot extraction, who came from the County of Ulster, in Ireland, in 1723 and settled at Oneco, now known as Sterling, in Connecticut.

Besides his wife and his five children he is survived by two brothers—Dr. George Morris Dorrance, of Philadelphia, a vice-president of the company, and Arthur C. Dorrance, of Riverton, general manager and vice-president, and two sisters, Mrs. Robert H. Blake, of New York, and Mrs. Ray Dudley, of Washington.

The funeral will be held at 11 o'clock (Philadelphia time) Wednesday morning in Christ Church, Riverton, N. J.

Dr. Dorrance had returned Monday from his summer home at Bar Harbor. Tuesday he was stricken with illness, at first thought not serious. But a heart attack caused his death. He was 56 years old.

Mrs. Dorrance, five children and Dr. Dorrance's two brothers were with him when the end came.

Dr. Dorrance married Ethel Mallinckrodt, daughter of the late Louis W. and Florence Mallinckrodt, at Baltimore, August 18, 1906. Their children are Mrs. Nathaniel Peter Hill, of New York; Ethel Mallinckrodt Dorrance, Charlotte Kelsey Dorrance, Margaret Winifred Dorrance and John Thompson Dorrance, Jr.

Dr. Dorrance's career was a notable example of success won by obtaining the most thoroughgoing of modern scientific training in chemistry and then applying that technical skill to the development of a great new industry.

After receiving the degree of B. S. from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1895 he went to the University of Göttingen, in Germany, and there two years later took the degree of doctor of philosophy, after continuing to specialize there in chemistry.

Returning to America in October, 1897, he entered the service of the Joseph Campbell Preserve Company, predecessor of the Campbell Soup Company, as chemist.

At that time the company, headed by his uncle, was manufacturing some 200 food products, ranging from canned vegetables to mince meat and from jellies and jams to prepared mustards, catsups and salad dressings.

Dr. Dorrance had been struck in Europe with the much more common use of soup there than in the United States. He conceived the idea of preparing and packing soups in condensed form, retaining nutriment and flavor, but greatly reducing bulk. The methods he developed proved so successful that soups soon became the major output of the company and the sales world-wide.

In 1898, the year after Dr. Dorrance's return from Germany, the company produced 500,000 cans of soup, of five kinds. The company now produces more than a score of different kinds of soup, besides canning spaghetti and pork and beans. He believed in concentration of effort and mass production.

At Dr. Dorrance's urging, the company embarked on a vast campaign of advertising. The result was to

FRANCIS J. THOMPSON WEDS IN PHILADELPHIA

Ceremony Took Place in St.
Edward's Church, Saturday Morning

TO RESIDE IN PHILA.

An impressive and beautiful marriage was solemnized Saturday morning at nine o'clock, in St. Edward's Church, Eighth and York streets, Philadelphia, when Miss Gertrude M. Harkins, the daughter of Mrs. Hugh Harkins, of 2450 North Reece street, Philadelphia, became the bride of Francis J. Thompson, the son of James A. Thompson, of Pine street, Bristol.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Thomas S. McCarty, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. John W. Mundy, Rev. Francis P. Meagher, and Rev. Raymond P. Campbell, of Philadelphia, and Rev. Peter Quinn, of St. Mary's Manor, Langhorne. The marriage was solemnized with a nuptial mass.

The bride's attendants were: Mrs. Thomas Daly, of Philadelphia, as matron of honor; and Miss Frances Thompson, of Pine street, Bristol, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Margaret Murphy, of Philadelphia, as bridesmaids. Mr. Gene Lawler, of Bath street, Bristol, a cousin of the groom, acted as best man, while John Murphy and Thomas Daly, of Philadelphia, were ushers.

The bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Hugh McGarvey, of Philadelphia.

The bride was most charmingly gowned in an ivory slipper satin frock of chic and unique cut designed with a close fitting waist, having a rounded neck line, long, tight-fitting sleeves, ending in a pointed cuff, with the skirt which was ankle length showing low placed fullness and ending in a train. Simplicity of the dress was its key-note. With this Mrs. Thompson wore a tulle veil, with the head dress fashioned cap shape and held in place on either side with a cluster of orange blossoms. Her flowers consisted of a shower bouquet of bridal roses and one orchid. Elbow length gloves of ivory toned kid and ivory toned satin slippers completed her costume.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Thomas Daly, wore an original gown of Nile green toned satin model with a close fitting bodice made with a high waist line, sleeveless and an even all-around ankle length skirt with low placed fullness. With this costume Mrs. Daly wore a pink horsehair picture hat, elbow length white kid gloves, pink satin slippers and carried an arm bouquet of pink rosebuds tied with silver ribbon.

Mrs. Murphy and Miss Thompson, the bridesmaids, were attired in plique frocks of gold toned satin also made on the new lines, with high waists, sleeveless, rounded necklines and ankle length skirts featuring a lighter contrasting shade of gold as their only embellishment. With these, the bridesmaids also wore picture hats of Nile green horsehair, with upturned brims in front, which were laced with harmonizing Nile green ribbon ending in bows at the edges of the brims at the backs of the hats; elbow length white kid gloves and green satin slippers and carried arm bouquets of tea roses and yellow snapdragons.

The gowns of the entire bridal party were distinctive in their simplicity.

Following the ceremony a reception and breakfast were tendered the happy couple at McAllister's Hall, Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson have left to pass their honeymoon at Niagara Falls and will be at home to their friends after October 1st, at 2450 N. Reece street, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Thompson traveled in a navy blue flat crepe dress, made on the new lines and having a bolero jacket, a camel's hair coat, close-fitting navy blue hat, blue gloves, blue purse and blue slippers.

BIG BUSINESS

There are three distinct shopping seasons in the year—fall, Christmas and Easter—and not the least popular of these is the former. The fall and spring seasons are especially devoted to the renewal of personal wardrobes by both men and women and in this they are different from the Christmas shopping period.

The autumn months may be said to be peculiarly adapted for shopping. The days are bright and cool, the stores have been restocked, the weeks afford more time for store-touring and there are so many things which must be purchased in the way of personal attire and household needs.

It has become a national custom for the family as the vacation season closes in the late summer to concentrate its budgeting and saving on the requirements of the fall and winter. The anticipation of the fall shopping is quite as pleasurable as the actual shopping is necessary. Everybody saves for it participates in it.

That the fall months are bumper shopping times for the local business places is manifest. Everywhere are visible the unmistakable signs of business activity. The show windows are more brilliant, the show cases and shelves are piled high with fresh merchandise and the store aisles are bustling with eager customers.

The merchants are augmenting this business boom and aiding the shopping public by increasing their newspaper advertising. This advertising gives to both merchant and customer an additional sales force and another show window.

CARLYLE'S CRITICISM

Thomas Carlyle wrote scathingly of the way the reading public with anxiety seizes upon the latest scandal news about people unknown to the reader personally. Carlyle calls it the evidence of a small mind, and we think he is exactly right.

Metropolitan newspapers are the greatest offenders in the line of purveying this type of "news" to their readers, catering to the lower minds of the community by so doing.

Legitimate information about one's neighbors, such as the erection of a new barn, the births, the marriages and deaths in our own community are wholesome and are outside of the realm of impertinent curiosity, which drew the great Thomas' wrath. These are the main items carried by country weeklies, along with straight constructive matter like the doings of the chamber of commerce and the other public bodies and officials. They do not descend to the tattling of private scandals, or at least when they do one soon sees another newspaper for sale and another editor seeking new feeds.

Carlyle's criticism does not concern country weeklies. The small minds, completely empty, are often found in the great cities than in the rural communities.

All business is affected. There's even a let-down in the skirt business.

Another of the commoner secret ambitions is to have so much true culture it won't be necessary to leave 50-cent magazines around the

Miss Bertha Muschert, of Morrisville, a graduate of New Jersey State Normal School, was teaching in Asbury Park, N. J.

Julia Kelly, of Maryland, principal of the Friends' Institute at Langhorne, resigned her position after teaching two weeks. Mary H. Atkinson succeeded her.

John G. Spencer had served as postmaster at Oxford Valley since the office was established in 1849. Richard Paxson had served at Lahaska for 36 years.

Mrs. William Smith and daughter, Hannah of Richboro, had a thrilling experience when a colt they were driving near the Nesha, ran away and breaking loose from the wagon which fell in the ditch by the roadside. They were slightly injured.

Among sales of real estate was listed the transfer of a frame house on Sterling street, Newtown, from Miss Mary R. Cornell to Louis R. Kenderdine; a building lot on South State street, Newtown, from C. Taylor Lel and to Robert Kenderdine, and a lot on North Lincoln avenue, Newtown, from the heirs of Hannah B. Church to James T. Keith.

Miss Bessie Watson, of Langhorne, entered Wilson College, Chambersburg.

Interest was revived in a trolley road at Langhorne when a committee meeting at H. W. Watson's decided to build a line from Langhorne station to the Trenton cut-off. The Bristol to Newtown line was abandoned because the Pennsylvania Railroad refused to permit a crossing.

The Doylestown Intelligencer of September 11, 1880, said: Helling's Hotel, Middletown township, fifty years ago, was the scene of a painful accident, the result of a young man believed to have grabbed hold of the wrong end of a gun he had placed on the porch of the hotel. The young man injured, a nephew of John Schatt, Hulmeville, had come from the city to enjoy a day's hunting in the country and went to meet a friend in the vicinity of Helling's Hotel. Upon coming out of the house it was believed the youth grabbed the barrel end of the gun which discharged. The discharge entered the fleshy part of the arm, not only tearing away the flesh, but shattering the bone.

The Newtown Enterprise dated September 14, 1895, said:

A frame barn on the farm of Jesse Cabe, tenanted by William Killian, near Hulmeville, was destroyed by fire. Everything in the building was burned except two horses which Mr. Killian was able to get out.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE

Smiley Johnson, Manager of the John Rainey Shows, for Mary Rainey, the owner, is secretly in love with Mary. He has a rival in Bud Conway, a wealthy college chap, who has joined the circus. Things are going badly with the circus and Smiley secures Amos K. Shrewsbury as a partner. Mary and some of the circus people are entertained by Bud's family at a banquet, where the antics of Smiley and Amos completely disgrace Mary and greatly annoy Mr. and Mrs. Conway. Smiley is annoyed over Mary's apparent regard for Bud and threatens to fire him and as a result gets fired himself.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III—Continued

The performers muttered sullenly.

"Mary, I've done all I could with the boys. They want their pay," Dalton said, as Mary reached his side.

"Well, pay them."

"I'm sorry, Mary, but the Sheriff attached the box office."

"Oh if Smiley were only here," wailed Mary.

Outside the impatient crowd

"Are you gonna let this crook put that over on you, Mary? Listen, Dalton. Mary's father told me to take care of this circus and I'm going to do it, whether she wants me or not. Now get busy and give the show."

But the performers refused to go on without their money. So there was nothing left for Smiley to do but attempt to put on as much of the show as possible with the few people who remained loyal to him.

With frequent quick changes of costume and a lot of clowning, Smiley succeeded in keeping the crowd entertained for a time. But it wasn't long before he had exhausted his repertoire of tricks and the crowd continued to yell for more.

"They'll tear the circus down if we don't get them out. Boys, quick! Get those lion skins out of the prop wagon and get into them. Run out into the ring. That'll do the trick," Smiley instructed.

At the sight of lions loose in the Mary—Aw, you're always saving me trouble—Gee! You've stepped in and taken the place of my dad.

yelled and hooted their displeasure at the delay in the show. Dalton bent over Mary and whispered:

"I know a man who will put up enough money to pay the salaries if you'll give him a controlling interest. All you have to do is sign these papers."

A few miles out of Shrewsbury, a defunct figure plodded along the highway. As a car appeared around a bend in the road, he stepped out to halt it. With a screech of brakes, the car came to a standstill and Bud Conway looked out in astonishment.

"Smiley—what are you doing here?"

"Never mind me. Where have you been? Mary's been looking for you all day."

"I've been trying to raise money for her."

"She don't need your money. They're selling out today."

"Yes, but the Sheriff's taking it all."

"What!" exploded Smiley.

"Yes, he attached the show."

Smiley climbed hastily in beside Bud.

"How fast can this coffee pot travel? Show me."

CHAPTER IV

Mary, pen in hand, was bending over a legal looking paper as Smiley burst into the room. Dalton's face turned livid with rage as Smiley grabbed the paper out of Mary's hand.

make America a nation of soup-users far more than ever before in its history. The triumphs achieved are regarded as one of the classics in advertising history. The increase in volume of sales brought about a reduction of 80 per cent in the cost per for overhead and reduced the total advertising and sales expense from nearly 20 to less than 5 per cent.

Dr. Dorrance was keenly interested in the art as well as the science of soup-making. He studied the methods employed by some of the most famous chefs in Europe, such as those of the Cafe de Paris. The chefs of Paris elected him an honorary member of the Societe de Secours Mutuel des Cuisiniers de Paris. The only other foreigner ever so honored was King Edward VII of England.

Three years after he went to work for the company, Dr. Dorrance was elected—on September 11, 1900—a director and vice-president. He became chairman of the Property Committee of the company in 1902, of the Purchasing Committee in 1905, of the Sales Committee in 1909. He became general manager January 17, 1910, and president of the company January 5, 1914. Eventually he was sole owner. Since 1915 the company has borne its present name.

Not only was he keenly enterprising in improving the manufacturing methods of the company, but also he devoted great attention to encouraging and aiding the farmers who sold produce to the company to use superior seeds and plants and to produce a better quality and in greater quantity per acre.

Besides his Pomona Farms, near Cinnaminson, Dr. Dorrance had a place, Woodcrest, at Radnor. He was fond of books and art, assembled an important private library and brought together a notable collection of tapestries.

Dr. Dorrance was a Republican. He was senior warden of Christ Episcopal Church at Riverton, N. J.

He had been honored by the French Government with the decoration of Officer of the Legion of Honor.

He was a member of the American Chemical Society, American Association for the Advancement of Science, Academy of Natural Sciences, Art Alliance, New England Society of Pennsylvania, Historical Society of Pennsylvania and the Museum Committee of the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art.

He was a life member of the Racquet, University, Manufacturers and Philadelphia Country Clubs, Philadelphia Golf, Wilderness and Technology Clubs in Philadelphia; the Cercle Interallie, in Paris; the New York Yacht, Metropolitan, Midway, Recess and Technology Clubs in New York; the Camden Club, the Riverton Country Club, Seaview Golf Club at Absecon, Sora Gun Club, of Bridgeton, N. J.; the Bar Harbor Yacht Club and Kebo Valley Club at Bar Harbor, Me.; the Conant Yacht Club and the Jamestown Golf Club at Jamestown, L. I.; the Long Key Fishing Club in Florida and the Madison Fork Ranch at West Yellowstone, Mont.

At the time of his death he was a director of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Philadelphia National Bank, Philadelphia and Camden Ferry Company, Port Reading Railroad, the Pennsylvania Railroad and of the Grand Trust Company.

URBANA, Ill., Sept. 22.—Bob Zuppke has just one answer when you ask him what sort of a team will represent Illinois on the gridiron during the coming campaign. He shrugs his shoulders in typical Zuppke style, and exclaims:

"I don't know."

That just about covers the situation down here, where only four letter-winners have returned to help the "Little Giant" maintain his brilliant page of the past three seasons, in which he won a pair of big ten titles and was beaten just twice.

Zuppke is very frank about the matter. He admits he isn't going to be disappointed no matter what happens.

Zuppke is certainly not exaggerating when he says Illinois will have a young team. Present indications are that at least six sophomores and one junior will be in the line-up in the opening game with Iowa State on October 4. There doesn't seem to be any other course open to the Illinois coach after losing an array of talent that included Wietz, Crane and Roush, guards; Gordon and Burdick, tackles; Wolgast, Jolley and Steinman, ends; and Mills, Timm, Humbert, Peters, Lanum and Walker, backs.

Two sophomores loom as the first selections for the end positions. They are Boyd Owen, a flaming red-head who somehow or other got out of South Bend before Rockne saw him, and Mark Swanson.

Moving into the backfield, one finds Zuppke specializing in fast, light men. Reports are that he plans to spring an entirely new style of attack on the big ten this fall, abandoning the old double-wing-back offensive used so effectively the past three years. Zuppke admits this is true, explaining that the material on hand is the cause.

Wilkie Appointed Phila. Nash Dealer

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22.—In the year 1905 W. C. Durant, then president of the Buick Motor Company, visited the city of Philadelphia for the purpose of establishing a dealer for his product. At that time "Ed" Wilkie was in the sales department of the Philadelphia Electric Company. Mr. Durant contracted with him, resulting in the purchase by Mr. Wilkie, not only of the second Buick car manufactured by Durant's company, but the closing of a contract to take, in a year, 250 cars to be disposed of through a dealership which was begun in this way.

In the period of 1905 to 1930 Mr. Wilkie continued to represent the Buick Motor Company and for many of these years was the recognized largest retail dealer of Buick cars in the United States.

In the spring of 1930 Mr. Wilkie disposed of his going business by sale and took a much needed and deserved rest. Being young in years, and with plenty of punch remaining in his system, it was impossible to remain long inactive, and in his decision to resume business he naturally inclined to the one with which he was most familiar, and in which he had an already favorably established reputation—the automobile business.

The former interest with which Mr. Wilkie was identified produced some outstanding characters which dominated and affected the success of the product and the company. In the picture one of the outstanding men with whom Mr. Wilkie had long enjoyed a personal and very cordial relationship was C. W. Nash. Coming into the Buick organization under W. C. Durant at the time of its acquisition by Durant prior to 1908, Mr. Nash early made the impress of his ability on that interest, resulting in 1910 in his being elected president and general manager of the Buick Motor Company, which position he held until 1912, when he was elected president and general manager of the General Motors Corporation, continuing in that office until his decision to become an independent manufacturer of cars in 1916, when he resigned and organized, at Kenosha, Wisconsin, the present Nash Motors Company.

A thorough knowledge of the merit of Nash products; the enviable position enjoyed by C. W. Nash and his company, both as manufacturers and in financial strength, naturally inclined Mr. Wilkie to a most favorable consideration of that line for his business.

The tie-up is a logical one in view of this direct and indirect relationship of both principals during the history of the automobile business.

J. G. Roberts, president of Roberts Nash Motor Company, distributors of Nash cars in Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware, is delighted to announce that the Wilkie-Nash Motor Company have been appointed Nash dealers in the city of Philadelphia.

Naturally, the fact of Mr. Wilkie's return to the automobile business in Philadelphia is hard to keep a secret long, and in advance of the opening of his new place and business he is already receiving the hearty congratulations and best wishes of many friends and patrons.

NOTRE DAME COACH BACK AT THE HELM

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 22.—(INS)—Now that Coach Knute

Rockne, fully recovered from his insidious siege of thrombosis phlebitis (blood clot), is back once more at the helm of Notre Dame's ship of football destiny, that vessel's voyage through the coming season promises to be bright and glorious.

Indeed, the Sage of South Bend himself has confidently announced that he has a winning crew, and he is facing the future with fortitude, although he admits that there are some tempestuous storms ahead.

Rockne has mapped out a 1930 football schedule that is simply stupendous. Included in the list of the ten teams that his Ramblers will face are the Navy, the Army, Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania. Just how tough this schedule really is becomes apparent when it is remembered that Notre Dame this year is without the services of Jack Elder and Jack Cannon, those two luminaries of the gridiron who were so largely responsible for the victorious 1929 Notre Dame football season.

Offsetting, in a measure, the loss of Notre Dame's fleet half-back, is the fact that Army is likewise minus its Cagle. Absence of these men from their respective crews, will, it is believed, put the two teams on the same basis of approximately parity that they fought on last year. But how Notre Dame will do without Cannon, unanimous 1930 choice for All-American tackle, only time will reveal.

One other worry confronts Rockne. That is the frown of disapproval that the Football Rules Committee has directed toward the now celebrated and widely imitated Notre Dame shift. Restrained from the use of this maneuver, one department at least of Rockne's strategy will be seriously hampered. Rockne eloquently defends the shift. Glenn Warner, Southern California's mentor, asked him the other day:

"Is there any momentum in the Notre Dame shift?"

"No!" was Rockne's instant reply. "Is a team that shifts laterally capable of momentum, the latter being understood as forward speed? No again. We at Notre Dame are perfectly willing to come to a full stop after the shift before setting the play in motion. But we do not propose to stand out there, after committing our intention and tacitly inform our opponents of what we intend to do."

Here is the 1930 schedule of games in which Rockne's Ramblers will apply his tactics.

Oct. 4—Southern Methodist at Notre Dame.

Oct. 11—Navy at Notre Dame. (Dedication of new stadium.)

Oct. 18—Carnegie Tech at Notre Dame.

Oct. 25—Notre Dame at Pittsburgh. Nov. 1—Indiana at Notre Dame.

Nov. 8—Notre Dame at Pennsylvania.

Nov. 15—Drake at Notre Dame.

Nov. 22—Notre Dame at Northwest.

Nov. 29—Army and Notre Dame at Soldier Field, Chicago.

Dec. 6—Notre Dame at Southern California.

According to tentative announcements, Notre Dame's regular line-up will look much like this:

Left	Position	Right
Connally	End	O'Brien
Leahy	Tackle	Donahue
Metzger	Guards	Kassus
Yarr	Center	Gorman
Schwartz	Half	Brill
	Quarter	Carrideo
	Fullback	Savoldi

Jones Today Goes After 4th Title on Golf Links

championship for the third time in his life; finally he won the American open championship for the fourth time in his life.

So he stands today on the threshold of a miracle and all the world is standing with him, praying the same prayers that he will pray for the victory that he craves.

Here are the men who are most likely to dispute, if not nullify altogether, his progress towards the goal:

Harrison Johnston, the 1929 champion; Dr. O. F. Willing, the 1929 runner-up; Johnny Goodman, the man who beat Jones last year in the first round at Del Monte, thus creating a new dynasty after Jones had won in 1924, 1925, 1927 and 1928; Cyril Tolley, twice a British champion, and who, like Johnson succumbed to Jones only after a great fight in the last British amateur event; George Voight, who had Jones two down at the fourteenth hole in the same championship; George Von Elm, who beat Jones out of the 1926 championship and perhaps all the more dangerous for the fact that he has announced his retirement from competition at the close of this tournament; Francis Quimet; Chick Evans, Max Marston, Jesse Guilford and Jess Sweetser, ex-champions all.

Great names, these, but they don't begin to sustain the list. What for instance, of Lawson Little, who beat the man who beat Jones at Del Monte? What of Gibson Dunlap, who hasn't been over 70 for his last three rounds of the round or of Don Moe, Gene Mommans, Philip Finlay, or, in fact, any given dozen who might leave the first tee at any given moment this morning? They are great golfers or they wouldn't be in there, which is the thing that makes Jones' triumphs, even granting them to be the handiwork of one of this world's annointed, more amazing than ever.

He isn't really due to win the tournament. Any human being who has won the first three championships of the year just naturally might be expected to blow the fourth. But, in spite of rumors that he had become fretful in the face of this emerging to the point where his golf has suffered, he went out yesterday and shot a 69 to win a two-dollar bet and, if he wants another today, he probably will see that he gets it. He usually does.

Merion has been very good to Jones. It got him all the way to the third round in 1926 when actually he was only there to see what it was all about. It was the scene of his first amateur championship victory and this week it will be the scene of either his greatest triumph or his most disappointing failure. He is grimly determined that it shall not be the latter and, with a fortune from Atlanta riding at 50 to 1 on his four-way victory this year, the chances were far from bad that four ways it will be, in spite of what they say about Jones' lack of poise here.

POLLYANNA

First Clubman (after midnight): "Good heavens! I've just remembered that I haven't my latch key with me."

Second Clubman: "Won't your wife get up and let you in?"

First: "I'll make her. I'll scratch on the door and whine and she'll think her pet dog has been locked out."

The reason the game hasn't got a chance is because two men will kill forty to fifty birds in one day's hunt and not be ashamed of it.

Matrimony is a grindstone that puts a sharp and cutting edge on the gentle words of courtship.

"Don't you know there is a law against selling liquor?"

"We don't sell it; we just lease it for 99 years."

What makes prize fights so brutal is having to pay $40 for a ringside seat.

They Overlooked the Diamonds

THERE is a modern flippancy to the effect that "What you don't know won't hurt you." It is also a fallacy. For instance:

The farmers of Kimberley were a disgusted, disheartened lot. They said the soil was too rocky to earn them a living. Some of them left. Others died in poverty.

And all the time their children were playing with diamonds.

But the farmers didn't know. They thought the priceless gems were pebbles.

Don't be like those Kimberley farmers. Know!

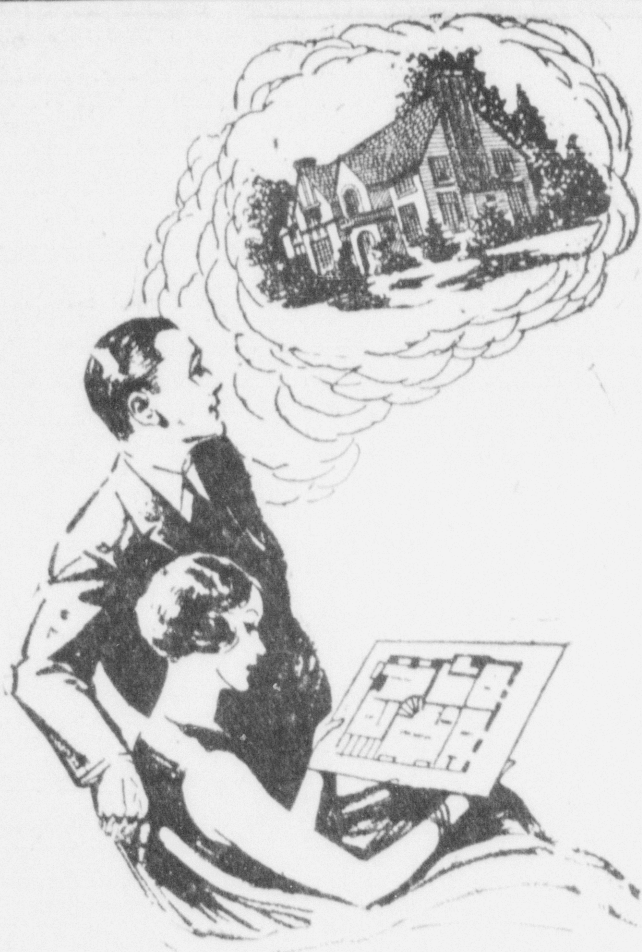

Don't seek opportunity in some distant place and overlook the diamonds that are daily within your grasp. Know!
